

RSE - Did You Know?

The government says that Relationships education has to be taught in all primary schools.

Sex education does not have to be taught in primary schools, only secondary schools.

Parents and carers cannot withdraw their child from any relationships or health education but they can still ask that their child is withdrawn from some parts of sex education but not any that is taught in science lessons.

Children who have sex education at school know the real facts and make better choices than children who hear things from their friends or see it on TV etc.

You can find our Relationships and Sex Education policy which tells you why and how we do it on our school website. Just click on the statutory information tab, and it is in the policies section.

Each year 'The Big Talk' comes into school and teaches sex education to every year group. Before they visit, parents are invited into school to find out what and how they are going to teach your child.

Relationships and Sex Education - What do you think?

Growing and changing

Similarities and differences

Feelings

Keeping safe (including bullying, internet and social networking)

Keeping yourself clean and healthy

Friends

Mental health and wellbeing

Families of all kinds

Choices and consequences

Gender stereotypes (Key stage 1)

Gender and sexuality (Key stage 2)

Male and female body parts

Reproduction and birth (Key stage 2 only)

Any comments -----

Are there any other topics you would like to see covered?

